

ABSTRACT

This invention provides a track adapted for use in a hand-held, capsule-containing device which is adapted to receive a series of capsules therein and defines a conveying path along which the capsules are conveyable. The path includes at least one fold section thereby to provide the path with a space-saving configuration. The present invention provides a hand-held device incorporating the track and capsules in the track. The capsules may contain a medicament powder.